Synopsis :

Emmy, an 18-year-old circus performer, wakes up after having been in a coma for a year. Like her body, her memory is only partially restored. With the help of her sister she will try to bring back the pieces of her life.

FIRST BREATH: A short film on how a family courageously rebuilds itself in the aftermath of a tragic event, played out against the backdrop of the dazzling and demanding world of the circus performer.

Emmy, the young performer who finally wakes up from a coma, is played by Zoé Adjani (who appeared in her first major role in the feature film CERISE by Jérôme Enrico)

Author & director: Nathan Ambrosioni

Nathan was born on the 18th August 1999 in Grasse in the Alpes-Maritimes region of France. Self-taught and totally passionate about his art, Nathan goes beyond scriptwriting and directing, throwing himself wholeheartedly into editing and post-production work. For the time being, studying has to come first. Nathan is currently in his final two years at secondary school preparing his French baccalauréat (Literary option) but he devotes all his spare time to his film projects.
